Three Links to ID Information

The three Intellectual Disability (ID) informational links I am sharing on my website were chosen for the different types of information that they offer. ParentCenter has a webpage filled with helpful resources for parents, and students, and links to support agencies. Resource for Education, Advocacy, Communication, and Housing has a wonderful informational site, REACH, for families of children with ID, and for people with ID who are looking for ID support groups, housing and resources. The final site I found is hosted by the American Association on Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities (AAIDD). AAIDD is the oldest and largest interdisciplinary organization in the country serving people with intellectual disabilities and provides professionals with continuing educational resources for working with the ID population.
