

Carmen Schipper
Instructor: Polly Manske
SPE 613A: Exceptional Education Etiology
26 October, 2020

3 Links to Autism Information

The three links I chose to share on my website have special meaning to me; as a parent of a child with ASD, I have found a number of resources that have been extremely helpful in navigating the maze of support options and information on the journey of autism. The first link that I have chosen is Autism Speaks, which offers excellent information on what to do after receiving a diagnosis of ASD, and how to find supports and services in your area. The second site that I chose is the Autism Society, a wonderful resource that explains laws at the federal and state levels. For my final link, I chose the website for the Center for Parent Information & Resources. This site gives parents and educators a wealth of education about the government-mandated services program, Early Intervention. The site also explains how to apply for state services in the program, as well as information on different therapies and services.